Get Outta Town

There's no excuse for staying put with these perfectly stylish—and ridiculously cheap—escapes

Designer Silvia Tcherassi kept things small when she opened her first hotel last year (The Tcherassi has just seven unique rooms). And got just about everything right. There's the striking contrast of exposed brick with sleek, dark wood and glass, the excellent restaurant serving coastal Italian cuisine, and the soaking pools that dot the terraces and courtyards of the meticulously restored mansion.
